

“Wolf Haters and/or Animal Haters”

The number one thing about Wolf-Haters or animal haters is that it is never the wolf or wolf-dog or that particular animal that they hate, but the things that we love about him.

It may surprise you to know that these people have agendas that are many times anti-social in that they seek to hurt the innocent animals (people too) for their own means, reasons, popularity, attention or profit. Read the list and see how many you agree with and/or have seen or learned by yourself.

1. They hate them because they are loyal.
2. Because they won't turn on whom they are bonded to. That at first was puzzling until I learned more about their minds and how they work.
3. They hate them because they are more intelligent than any dog.
4. They hate because they are not strong minded or steadfast people themselves. They hate a wolf because the wolves have the strong and intelligent minds that they do not have and never will.
5. They have this in common; they always blame the wrong target. If someone is the actual cause of something, they will blame any thing else but the true cause.
6. They fear more than wolves, many times they have a lot of things, and people that they fear. They are neurotic with the amount of fears and phobias that they have.
7. They buy the brainless Rag magazines such as the National Enquirer.
8. They believe any thing that they are told by other fools.
9. They believe any thing written in any newspaper or news show.
10. They will never, never seek facts about any thing; they think that their own sick truths are facts.
12. They will refuse to read evidence that wolves and wolf-dogs are safer than any other big animal. They can't stand being wrong, it will destroy their delicate mental and neurotic state.
13. They love to gossip about everything, and will believe any rumor as actual facts.
14. They are nearly always pro-criminals because they make excuses for them, and will protect them against a victim. They are never for the truth, or the victim.
15. They will insist that people buy a Pit Bull or Rotweiler for families with small kids, claiming that these are better and safer for your families. They are intentionally sly about this.
16. They will use and twist the good reputation of wolves and wolf-dogs to get the attention that they can't live without.
17. Reporters have no conscious, loyalty or integrity, so you will always find them seeking to make a story no matter who or what gets hurt. All they want is a story to justify their small minds or existence.
18. These wolf-haters are the kind of people that will stop you from going natural or feeding your dogs a natural diet, giving you lies that your dogs will now want to kill because they have tasted raw meat.
19. Dig deeply and you will find them admitting that they are anti-self defense for decent citizens, with the excuse "that is why we have police to defend us." They are always making excuses for criminals.
20. They may eat natural diets themselves, but will never encourage you to go Natural yourself, they will always have a reason why you should not, and will hate that you feed your pets natural foods.

21. Animal Psychiatrists, psychologists, and behavioral therapists are nearly always wolf-haters; they won't even be able to tell you the body language a wolf, wolf-dog or regular dog has to communicate with their own kind. They study Freud and apply the sex therapy crap to dogs and expect us to believe them. They are useless and foolish, especially when they tell you that your dog's mental illness is because it wants to hump you and feels denied. They have more sex on their own minds than any animal. Their Freudian sex crap makes them sick puppies.

22. More women than men are wolf-haters because of fear for their children caused by yellow sensationalist, but when a man is a wolf-hater his mind is especially weak, his in-ability to show mental force is hidden, he appears to be strong but is not, he is very weak as a man. He also has agendas not brought on by fear but by hate and greed. He is definitely a corrupt politician or greedy and un-ethical reporter.

23. American politicians will also jump into any wolf, wolf-dog or "dangerous dog" debate for the main purpose of self-aggrandizement and enhancing their personal stature. They gladly will condemn any animal for their agenda-self interest, profit and power. These are moral prostitutes which we have given too much control in our government. We need to vote for and approve all laws ourselves and not let them do it for us.

24. The news media and politicians love to create a hysteria caused by any animal attacks, the artificially created fever pitch of emotions created viciously by the media and politicians is based on far deeper and darker reasons. In the present climate, which is marked by great dissatisfaction of many citizens with the conduct of politicians with regard to social and labor market problems, it appears to be a politically motivated tactic to divert attention from the real problems and channel the public's frustration away from the actual issues toward a new "enemy" all can agree on, i.e., "fighting dogs" "killer wolves", no matter how arbitrarily that label is affixed. This is meant to illustrate the UN-willingness and in-ability of elected officials to deal with real problems. Dogs or wolves then, become easy targets to redirect hatred and frustrations, because any tragic incident, coupled with an innate fear in some people of the "wolf descendants" of long ago, are used to inflame as are the pictures of dog teeth bared, ready to attack and mutilate. The headlines of "KILLERS OUT OF CONTROL... WHO MURDER, THREATEN AND TEAR APART..." "Fear of Biting Beasts", "Killer Fighting Dogs Rampaging" and similarly captioned tirades of rag magazines and formerly respectable daily newspapers and weeklies all have hit the same gutter level now. Numerous journalists and moderators are agitating and stirring up emotions, indiscriminately mixing emotionalism with facts, and demanding in unison that all "killer beasts" be rooted out, sterilized, killed or incarcerated. All dogs or wolf-dogs labeled as killers and their offspring are now characterized as "devil dogs". This includes breeds with spotless reputations for merely being of a certain type or species, which are now accused of being potentially unpredictable, dangerous weapons in the hands of their owners. They will solve the "problem" they say by a rash enactment of new laws and regulations to kill the animals.

Thus a collective outcry for protection of humans, particularly children, makes sense, yet leaves a rational person wondering why there was no similar outcry and demand for new laws when human criminals kill us.

Another suspect and irresponsible aspect of the current anti-dog or anti-wolf regulations is that they are touted as intended to protect people and particularly children, rather than as a means of mass-control of dog owners and the extermination of dangerous dogs. Considering that, according to official statistics, last year thousands of children were killed in traffic accidents and many thousands more were injured, why does this not rate more serious regulation of reckless drivers? To direct regulatory efforts against dogs or wolf-dogs instead of the criminal conduct of irresponsible owners aggressive or veterinarians, is equivalent to lawmakers taking away the car of a reckless driver so he cannot endanger someone else in the future with that particular vehicle.

Unfortunately, in the inflammatory reporting of bite incidents, it is rarely mentioned that, aggressive dogs act usually at the command or instigation of their owners. Thus we have bad regulations with terrible consequences, ignoring the problem at the other end of the leash.

There can be no argument that part of the breeds now designated as killer dogs -- Rottweilers, Doberman Pinschers -- have served humans for many decades as watch and protection dogs, scent hounds, etc. Any of these breeds in humane and caring hands should surely be protected by law rather than discriminated against. Furthermore it should be remembered that veterinarians, humane organization experts and serious breeders, while encouraging development of protective traits, have at the same time, long demanded stricter import criteria for dogs of all breeds to prevent danger to the public and police in pursuit of their duty in house searches, etc. On the other hand, it is a well-known fact that for some time fighting dogs have been obtained by a subculture of young, unemployed men, especially in large cities, who acquire them as a status symbol and weapon.

As soon as various breeds were designated by the authorities as dangerous dogs, communities all over the country rushed in with new taxes for the designated breeds. This most welcome increase in tax monies had, however, the opposite effect from the stated intent. Since, especially in large cities, many dogs of the effected breeds are either not registered or their owners are on welfare, the new taxation merely led to greater discrimination against responsible owners and their dogs, and spread great fear through the population. Many of those subject to the high new taxes could no longer afford to keep their pets licensed and therefore turned them over to already overloaded pounds, while others were forced to relinquish their pets under pressure from landlords and neighbors. Either way the evil intent of these evil human animals is to kill thousands of innocent dogs to suit their agenda. That is why all decent people must fight these human animals.

Mislabeled of dangerous breeds? Who, within the regulatory agencies is qualified to identify mixed breeds without error, especially if an owner cannot produce a pedigree or has falsified papers?

Some owners of "aggressive or dangerous dogs or wolf-dogs" are creating our social problems. Because any puppy can be turned vicious when beaten, isolated, mutilated, etc. to force it into abject obedience, thus turning into a deadly weapon. They are the ones that should be euthanized not the victims of their cruelty.

THE INVISIBLE DAMAGE -- ANIMAL PROTECTION is also the protection of the rights of a society. We need to fight greedy, crooked politicians, and the yellow media to save our innocent animals from these human animals.

Recent government acts have turned a child's pet dog, the super-dog of TV shows, the friendly neighborhood pooch into a fearsome beast, out to murder us all. Endless pictures of tooth-baring, threatening dogs with bloodshot eyes, ready to chew through iron bars -- along with pictures of dogs executed, lying next to the body of a dead child, and photos of fear-distorted adult faces -- all serve to frighten children, especially the very young who have no means of distinguishing fact from fiction. It gives them nightmares, panic attacks, and phobias against all dogs and wolf-dogs and may increase their own aggressiveness.

The ensuing insecurity, fanned by deliberate sensationalism leading to panic, creates a constant fear for children, especially in the context of their own parents' fears. It is a well-known fact that children exposed to extreme situations, such as wars and natural disasters, can come through such experiences without harm when they are secure in their parents' protection. However, when parents themselves suffer from a high level of anxiety and insecurity, and try to protect their children against all potentially threatening situations, they will find that their children are unable to deal with them in a flexible and sensible manner. Avoidance of fearful situations then, is virtually impossible as children are likely to encounter dogs or wolf-dogs every day. This will only be reinforced if a frightened child tries to run away, while a dog's natural instinct for the chase kicks in.

Overanxious parents will, at this point, demand that the authorities do something to protect them and eliminate all potential risks from their lives, as for example, shown in increasing demands following the false wolf-dog stories, to fence all school grounds to make them more secure. Families which suffer from extreme fearfulness just know that their children will become victims of dangerous dogs. And when their children have no real life experience with the majority of dogs which are friendly family members, the psychological damage can be severe and long lasting to us all.

In unstable families or those threatened by dissolution, the externalization of the problem by redirecting it against the neighborhood dogs may diffuse a bad situation temporarily by projecting aggressiveness and lack of control of a disruptive family member upon dogs, which then become substitute targets for fear and anger -- but that certainly does not resolve the real problems which comes from a bad government and yellow journalism.

The trauma inflicted upon children in families with pets who are forced to give them up under the new regulations, either because of neighborhood pressures or because they did not pass the new animal regulations under very unrealistic and adverse conditions, is equally if not more traumatic. It takes no great imagination to see the permanent damage to a child's development when a dog it grew up with is being relinquished by its parents to a "dog home" where it will certainly be killed. Most likely this will produce anger, distress and a long-standing guilt feeling, not to mention the rage at parents who are unable to protect a beloved pet from such fate. Such conflicts can turn a normal child into a problem child, requiring special schooling and psychiatric counseling to prevent its feelings from turning anti-social and destructive.

It is highly likely that from now on, families with small children may forego the acquisition of a family dog entirely, which means that their children will grow up without ever knowing the positive influence of a pet to play with or teach them responsibility, respect and socialization.

DO YOU LOVE CHILDREN OR CURS?
Human v. Animal Protection

The present hysteria poisons the social climate of our lives by pitting dog haters vs. dog lovers. Such hate and aggressiveness from fellow citizens is very likely going to deepen previous trauma and destroy a person's life. In this supercharged atmosphere in the streets, fears and tensions spell permanent danger for dog owners. This escalates into more overt conflict, attacks and confrontations at the slightest excuse. Fear and hate are two good excuses for violence that is created by our politicians and our own media. This is done on purpose and with a plan for their own agenda. Good people will some day be accused of harboring a dangerous dog will soon be evicted from their homes, severely fined or imprisoned.

NOBODY MAY INJURE AN ANIMAL OR INFLICT PAIN WITHOUT GOOD REASON
(so say our Animal Protection Laws)

Aside from the pain and suffering inflicted on dog owners these days, the laws of the land addressing the well-being of our animal companions are falling victim to ill-considered new regulations within the various counties, and appear to be forgotten in the rush of unscientific and unsound "solutions" to the so-called problem.

Even the highest ranking representatives of our political parties who claim to be representing nature and environmental concerns as their agenda, have propounded radical measures in violation of nature's sensible and intricate system within which every living thing is entitled to protection. Once violated, such willful interference hurts a great many more creatures than those which are supposed to be the actual target.

The hastily drafted new regulations ignore important sections of the existing animal protection laws in our books. In addition, the steep cost of the new fees every time an attack is falsified as being from a wolf or wolf-dog arouses suspicions that it is designed to be used as an arbitrary selection criteria to eliminate as many dogs as possible. This is genocide of innocent animals by our human animals whom we put in power to hurt us.

The overcrowded pounds will no longer be capable of meeting their mission of accepting all these rejected dogs. And even though there is talk about those dogs being made available for adoption, there are no provisions in the new regulations which would clarify whether and to whom impounded dogs may be released. The confusion is further compounded by the difference among the counties as to which breeds are dangerous and which are not, i.e., in some areas Rottweilers and Dobermans are designated as fighting dogs, but not in others. Today its Pit bulls, tomorrow Retrievers.

Between the current agitation and hysteria, anxiety and animosity, it is hard to imagine that there will soon be friendly cooperation once again after all the havoc caused by the irresponsible politicians and their disparate agendas. A bitter aftertaste is bound to remain for a long time from here on out, and the very real fear is that if the target population changes under the pressure of political tensions caused by the current situation, other minorities will become targets of collective aggression.

For all these reasons, it is imperative that we must return to an objective, calm and rational approach to "the problem". It is important to realize that people and animals must be better protected against truly aggressive dogs, for every dog is potentially dangerous in the wrong hands and can be turned into a weapon. However, instead of mass killings of entire breeds, new laws must be designed by experts in this area, and enactment of new laws must be phased in with a longer, more reasonable lead time to avoid further damages through the senseless panic which now rules.

We should oppose any breed-specific legislation by our human animals and fight such dog and wolf-dog discrimination: We should fight to support reasonable, enforceable, non-discriminatory laws to govern the ownership of dogs. We believe that dog owners should be responsible for their dogs. We support laws that: establish a fair process by which specific dogs are identified as "dangerous" based on stated, measurable actions; impose appropriate penalties on irresponsible owners; and establish a well-defined method for dealing with dogs proven to be dangerous. We believe that, if necessary, dogs proven to be "dangerous" may need to be humanely destroyed. We should strongly oppose any legislation that determines a dog to be "dangerous" based on specific breeds or phenotypic classes of dogs.

Wolf-dog or wolf haters also hate other breeds of dogs. My research has exposed this fact in talking with many of them. These people are sick, because to hate innocent animals and to want to kill them all for hate and fear of them is not normal. This includes reporters and politicians who have greedy and immoral agendas.

Be aware that some veterinarians refuse to treat wolf hybrids of any content, and some refuse to administer the rabies vaccine since its effectiveness on hybrids remains to be proven (although this is an issue which is currently in debate, and evidence is pointing towards the vaccine being approved for use on wolves and wolf hybrids). But since these are stone-cold wolf-haters, they are fighting its approval so the vaccine is still being refused by them. Causing wolf-dogs to be killed on purpose when and if they bite someone, with the blessing of many hateful veterinarians, greedy reporters and dirty politicians.

Beware of "Human Animals" they are extremely dangerous to us all. Fight for animal rights by fighting Human animals in our government.
